

The Life of Estella Smith

Compiled by Alane K. Dashner, Explore Lodi

Summary:

Estella Margaret Smith was born in Amador County in 1872. Her father soon bought 80 acres of bottomland on the south side of the Mokelumne River (and other properties) and moved the family to what would in 1934 become Lodi Lake. Estella was a good student and graduated from the Woodbridge's San Joaquin Valley College but she never married. Possible reasons:

- Under then-current California marital property laws married women were legally incapable of owning property, so she had to stay single to maintain control of the Smith acreage
- Similarly, husbands generally made the decisions on where a married couple would live and how he would spend their money
- She was unusually free-spirited and competitive, which may have been considered undesirable in a potential wife
- As she reached the typical age for marriage Estella's older sister died, leaving two very young children, which must have been traumatic for the family

Otherwise, the Smith family was "respectable" and in a time where physical disability was publicly discussed in detail, no mention is made of mental or physical limitations for Estella. It is very likely that she received marriage proposals.

Estella inherited the property in 1902 and ran it for 35 years. She made a couple of attempts to sell it as a resort before 1934 when the City of Lodi became interested in purchasing it to make a municipal park. Over time Estella sold most of the rest of her property to the City, to individuals and to General Mills.

Estella was adventuresome and socially very active in the Woodbridge Order of the Eastern Star, at the Woodbridge Golf and Country Club, and in card parties all over San Joaquin County.

In her last years her nephew Charles and his wife Elsie lived with Estella. (Charles's arm had been cut off while working in General Mills, says Charles's grandson Mike Robinson, who was a recent speaker at the Haggin Museum.) Estella died at age 92 and is buried in the Woodbridge Memorial Cemetery.

Old Smith home sold, set among the blossoming almond trees, across from the General Mills plant. GM has purchased two acres of the Smith property across the road from its present tract. Charles E. Smith built it in 1885. When Estella woke up she looked out through the west bay window at the almond blossoms. Horse and buggy took the Smith children to the two-room schoolhouse in Woodbridge, then to the San Joaquin Valley College. Estella's favorite sport was horseback riding and she broke her own horses. Miss Smith recalls "ten cent" parties given as church benefits and theater parties when SJVC teacher Charles Bryant turned the household into actors and actresses, producing plays in the parlor for the whole neighborhood to see. These rooms echoed with plans for the new golf course. Estella has only recently given up playing. Her nephew Charles H. Smith and his wife had moved their small home further west, across the almond orchard, away from the railroad. A coast redwood tree towers beside the path to the front door. The camellia bush given by GM is blooming against the sun porch. "There's no sense bawling over an old house," says Estella. She is working on the new one a block away.

Say hello to neighbor Estella Smith. A rancher, or "rancherette" in her own right, after her father's death she took over the 80 acres on which the family settled and began to "really operate" the ranch. She was partial to a "frisky" pony whose lively hooves were known even at a distance by almost everybody. "There was always something doing" in her girlhood so was used to lots of work. When help was needed on her ranch, she hired it. She could hitch up a team “just right quick.” Estella was 5 when her father sold this property and moved the family to Escalon. Seven years later her rebought the land and moved them back – “seven years on the wrong ranch.” Estella has a photo of her favorite tree, a mammoth oak, that she used to have club meetings under. She maintains that she was always too busy helping raise her nieces and nephews to get married and have babies herself. She, like her mother, was an active member of the Woodbridge Presbyterian Church. She was quite a good golfer. Some time ago when her nephew and his wife moved their little house from beside the old homeplace to Woodbridge Rd [today Lower Sacramento], Estella moved also into a a cozy little house near them. In 1947 she went clear to Portland, Maine. She has only recently returned from another trip back east, this time by air. Estella has recovered quite well from a broken hip that she received about 3 years ago and hopes to do entirely without a cane soon.

Steve Mann: Lakehouse project is still a go

It's still a "go," according to Lodi architect John Vierra. In fact, he says, "Dirt is likely to be moved spring 2026 (with) construction to start mid-2026" on the Lakehouse Resort project at the corner of Lower Sac and Turner, across from the former General Mills plant....That corner has never had anything built on it. An orchard has occupied the property for eons, but nowadays it's a vegetation wasteland as the property awaits the future.

History of San Joaquin County California with Biographical Sketches, by George H.

Tinkham 1923: [always take Tinkham with a grain of salt as the editors generally did not fact-check the families' submissions]:

Among the prominent women of Northern San Joaquin County, Miss Estella M. Smith has for many years been esteemed as a substantial resident of her community and factor for good and progress in religious, moral and social circles. Since 1885 she has been a resident on her beautiful estate of thirty acres situated near Woodbridge on the Lodi-Woodbridge Road at Smith's Lake. She first saw the light of day at Jackson, Amador County, and is a daughter of Charles Edward and Isabelle (Robertson) Smith, the former a native of Kennebunk Port, Me., and the latter born near Toronto, Canada. The father crossed the plains in an ox-team train to California in 1853 and the mother came about the same time via the Panama route. The father engaged in mining at Jackson for a few years, then followed farming until 1874 when he went to Sacramento County remaining there for one year; then in 1875 he located at Woodbridge where he purchased eighty acres on the south bank of the Mokelumne River. On this ranch is located what is known as Smith's Lake, a small body of water covering about fifteen acres surrounded by large oak trees. Charles E. Smith purchased this ranch from Capt. McQueen and owned it a few years when he sold it and removed to Escalon where he lived and farmed for seven years; then returned to Lodi and bought back his original place and lived upon it until his death in 1902, at the age of seventy-two years, while the mother passed away in 1900, at the age of fifty-eight. The eighty acres was originally heavily wooded and only a portion of it was cleared when Mr. Smith purchased it and during his lifetime he cleared the balance and planted it to vineyard; in 1885 he built a fine residence on his place. He was school trustee and was a member of Woodbridge Lodge of Masons. This worthy couple had four children, three living, Miss Smith being the youngest.

Estella M. Smith received her education in the Woodbridge grammar school and San Joaquin Valley College at Woodbridge, where she was graduated in 1893 with degree B. S. She grew up on her father's farm which has enabled her to continue the cultivation and care of a portion of the old homestead. Fifty acres of the original tract has been sold, so that Miss Smith now owns and operates thirty acres all in full-bearing vineyard. She is most progressive in her methods of farming and her labors and supervision have been attended with excellent results. As her father was a staunch Republican so Miss Smith votes. Her father was also a strong and active member of the Woodbridge Masonic Lodge and Miss Smith is past matron of Woodbridge Chapter No. 118 of the Eastern Star Lodge at Woodbridge. She is a Presbyterian in religion and her mother was one of the early members of Woodbridge Presbyterian Church. Her life has been characterized by unflagging industry and it is upon this foundation that she has builded her present prosperity.
